

SHAWNIGAN LAKE FLOODS: PAST, PRESENT & FUTURE

Dave Hutchinson
Shawnigan Focus

The “Atmospheric River” of mid November caused the third greatest flood of Shawnigan Lake since accounts have been kept. No actual measures are available for the 1909 event but it is anecdotally reported to be the highest. Proper data exists for subsequent floods.

Shawnigan Lake Historical Floods
Year	Date	Level in metres (CGVD-1928)	Level in metres (CGVD-2013)	Rank
1909	Nov	?	?	1
1935	Jan 25	118.90	119.10	2
2021	Nov 16	118.35	118.55	3
1972	Dec 25	118.20	118.40	4
2007	Dec 5	118.20	118.40	4
1979	Dec 18	118.10	118.30	5
2020	Feb 1	117.90	118.10	6

Confounding comparison between events is the recent change to a new elevation reference system. The CGVD28 vertical datum, was formally in use from 1935 to 2015. In 2013, the Canadian Geodetic Survey introduced CGVD2013, a more accurate reference, enabling compatibility with the Global Navigation Satellite System. To compare flood elevation levels there needs to be a conversion between CGVD28 and CGVD2013 which varies, depending on location.

115.4m (CGVD28). Compared with our recent flood at 118.35m this is a difference of 2.95m (almost 10ft).

During the last event the weather station at Discovery School recorded over 100mm of rain in a 24-hour period between November 14 and 15. Over four inches, this is close to an all-time record! In terms of actual damage though Shawnigan was relatively spared compared to the devastation in other parts of the Province. The lake level associated with major floods over the last 50 years has stayed well below 119m. The lower levels of many lakefront properties get flooded but catastrophic damage is minimal. Another metre or two could change that though.

Until 1964 there was no mechanism for controlling the lake level. That year Mill Bay Water Works built a rudimentary dam on Shawnigan Creek about 450m downstream of the lake with the intention to store water which would be released gradually in the summer months. This was to facilitate a continuous water supply for their downstream requirements. The current weir was completed in 2008. The CVRD oversees its operation which adheres to a “Rule-Curve” mandated by the Ministry of Environment. Again, the intent is to provide enough storage for downstream flow requirements during the dry months. Contrary to from the Dhillsean strata development on Cullin Road. If something like that were to end up stuck on an angle in the creek entrance, the level could rise rapidly by a metre or two. In 2011 the CVRD established the “Shawnigan Creek Cleanout and Drainage Service” which is allocated up to $18,000 per year. Rarely used, it appears ineffective with problems related to access, property ownership and riparian concerns.

The NHC report has increased the “Designated 200 Year Flood Level” significantly. This is the main factor which determines the “Flood Construction Level” (minimum elevation to allow buildings) which is now set at approximately 120m. This is 70cm higher than the level set by Ministry of Environment in 1979. Recently, when renewing my homeowner insurance, I was informed that “Overland Water Coverage” had been discontinued” and was no longer available. I suspect this may be a result of the new floodplain mappings contained in the NHC report.

As I write this on November 25, 2021, we have just begun the first of three new “Atmospheric River” events forecast for the next week. We used to call these the “Pineapple Express” as they transport tremendous amounts of water vapour in narrow bands from tropical areas of the Pacific Ocean to condense as precipitation over the lands of the Pacific Northwest. Although seasonally expected, they seem to be increasing in frequency and severity. In response, Environment and Climate Change Canada is working on a model to rank the predicted impact of these water events. Similar to wind events a one to five severity scale is proposed. Resulting damage from the most intense (AR4s and AR5s) will be measured in the billions of dollars. The mid November event was retroactively determined to be an AR5!

No single weather event is proof of climate change. However, there is no doubt that the planet has been warming at an alarming rate over the last few decades. There also seems to be general agreement that a warming atmosphere and warming oceans will increase the frequency of extreme weather events. In any case the future will be increasingly challenging.

Note: The NHC report is well worth reading and can be found at:

Northwest Hydraulic Consultants (NHC) produced a 2020 report for the Cowichan Valley Regional District (CVRD) titled “Shawnigan Lake Flood Preparedness”. Containing a wealth of information about the Shawnigan watershed, they explain that mapping software provided by Natural Resources Canada was used to convert between the two vertical datums. For Shawnigan, it appears that the CGVD28 measures are 20cm below the CGVD2013 data. One curious thing in their report is that the 2007 flood event is mentioned elsewhere but not included in their table of historical floods.

To get an idea how much the level varies, recent data shows levels during the dry months as low as frequent, misinformed opinion on social media, the weir is not mismanaged. From November to March the weir is fully lowered and cannot alleviate any flood.

One major threat that could be catastrophic for Shawnigan Lake properties is a blockage of the outflow creek during a flood event. Much floating debris including old docks and logs finds its way into the outlet. The old log boom, which did a decent job of preventing this, was removed in 2009 due to liability concerns. The CVRD has installed a plastic boom which is removed each spring and re-installed each fall. It is prone to failure and many objects make their way through. On several occasions large concrete docks have broken loose

Dear Santa,

I hope you have been keeping well. The last year has been a roller coaster for many communities and the same is true here in Shawnigan. With the return of the sunshine this summer, we were able to get back outside and gather with our friends and family. Government Wharf Park was packed every day and our new trail was being used by everyone, even my mom with a walker. The new parking lot was a boon for young families that are now able to enjoy Mason's beach without crossing the roads with their floaties. All our community parks and trails were used this year more than ever.

Santa, I'm wondering if you can put in a good word for us (the Community) with one of your friends in Ottawa? The community has put in for a number of Federal grants and we could sure use more seating areas in our parks, more real washrooms and an expanded beach. These improvements would be fabulous, since most of the children in Shawnigan live away the lake and enjoy our waterfront parks so much.

A grant for a new playground at Elsie Miles would also really help the pre-school and Community Centre. While you're at it, please mention the Museum too; they could really use another $500,000 for their expansion. My son also wanted me to ask you for a drum set. I know this is turning into a long wish list, so if it's too much, forget the drum set (my neighbours will appreciate that).

Thanks Santa and Happy Holidays Shawnigan Lake!

Stay safe, take care of each other and enjoy your time with friends and family this holiday season. As always, I'm available, your Area Director Sierra.

Shawnigan Basin Society

We are amazed by the generosity of residents and businesses this year. Despite incredibly difficult circumstances, hundreds of individuals have contributed to ensure volunteers at the Shawnigan Basin Society can continue protecting the Shawnigan Lake Watershed.

We are a few dollars short of our fundraising target for 2021 and a few weeks away from the year-end. If every person who reads this article contributes $20.21, we will meet our 2021 goal, which means that, in 2022, we will be able to do more to protect the Shawnigan Lake Watershed, work hard to conserve the lake's drinking water and push even further in the fight against climate change.

Aikido Dojo

Dear community,

Last month, in the spirit of remembrance, I introduced you to aikido, a Japanese martial art that was offered to humanity after the second world war, as an antidote to the insanity of global conflict.

In reality, smaller scale conflict resides within us and surrounds us daily, but its presence does not necessarily have to be a hindrance to the positive growth in a relationship. The study of aikido offers tools for managing and resolving conflict in a peaceful, constructive way.

In our practice, we learn how to lead, as well as to follow. Both are essential to a beneficial and creative group dynamic, whether that group constitutes a spousal unit, or a boardroom. There is no competition in aikido. In fact, we must work together for the techniques to blossom. We learn how to throw, and we learn how to fall. We must be respectful of our own and one another's limitations. We need to display a sensitivity to each other's capacities and desires. In other words, we need to harmonize.

Harmony doesn't mean getting along with people at any cost just to avoid confrontation. Harmony as used in aikido does not involve compromising at all. Rather, aikido's harmony brings different, even opposing elements together and works as a first step towards reconciliation, towards building a deeper, more productive, and reciprocal relationship.

What we ultimately try to accomplish is to create a spirit and sense of being that is relaxed, confident, present, adaptable, and resilient. However, the path towards the perfection of self and community is full of pitfalls, which is why we invite you to help us show the way.

Our dojo welcomes practitioners from all walks of life, from all ages (14+), from all genders. We all practice together because we can all learn from each other. If this sounds intriguing to you, please contact us for more information at selskens@shaw.ca.

St. John's Academy Interact Club

It is with good tidings that the members of the St. John's Academy Interact Club venture into the coming season of winter. Following a somewhat rough beginning, with multiple shifts within the executive roles, we have found our footing with three projects. These initial projects, two of which are charity drives, remain mostly within the school's internal community. However, we are also working on an outreach team to communicate with other schools and community groups. This group of students will present the benefits and rewards of having an Interact Club to schools which do not, as well as communicating with schools that do, in order to discuss the potential for collaborative projects between groups.

Speaking of such collaborations, St. John's Academy itself has seen a growing number of student leaders amongst its own ranks. The Interact Club cannot speak on behalf of other groups, but we remain optimistic and opportunistic, already having supported the House Leadership Team in their Halloween event at the school.

In celebration of the winter season, the Interact Club will be selling student-made holiday cards in order to raise money for in-school projects, and we will also be having clothing and toy drives (new and used items accepted) to gather supplies for the Salvation Army. These donation drives are running until December 6th and will be open to the public, with the drop-off area at the front desk at the school's office.

Stay tuned for more community events in the future!

Christmas at Shawnigan with E. J. Hughes

Robert Amos,
Artist and Author

E. J. Hughes and his wife Fern faced the winter of 1956 at Shawnigan Lake. “Our finances are strained,” he admitted in a letter to his dealer, Max Stern. But then the Winnipeg Art Gallery purchased his painting Nainimo Boat and the Royal Bank of Canada bought the rights to use Howe Sound as a print. “Around Christmas this unexpected amount is m ore welcome than ever,” Hughes wrote, signing off with some relief.

Hughes and his wife, Fern, were careful with their money, and their needs were few. In the beginning, Fern cooked Christmas dinner, but later she was disabled by muscular dystrophy. Yet the two of them enjoyed the season nevertheless. “For Christmas,” Pat Salmon recalled, “they got a new jigsaw puzzle, some Roger’s Chocolates and a box of Japanese oranges. They’d sit there all afternoon, one on each side of the jigsaw puzzle, and that was a wonderful Christmas for them.” Since then, Cobble Hill Puzzles has produced two Hughes paintings as jigsaw puzzles.

In 1962 Max Stern asked if Hughes could do a winter scene for a Hallmark Christmas card. The artist replied: “I have searched through all my old wartime Petawawa photos of my sketches and through any of my old work that depicts snow but have found nothing suitable. Snow scenes are not typical of the Coast here, as the snow is usually turned to wet slush in a day or two.” Hughes went on: “Usually I avoid winter scenes. I am doubtful if I could do one and still be me.” After his wife’s death in 1974, Hughes lived alone but at Christmas he enjoyed socializing with the Salmon family at Shawnigan. Pat Salmon told me that “Hughes would bring a bottle of rum for my husband Martin, books for me, chocolates for the kids. He’d usually have a new car. One time he wondered if he could make his car door open from inside the house. So, the kids went outside to watch and he’d get it clicking every time. So he was just as happy as a lark.” Later in the day “we’d be left playing one of the games the kids got for Christmas,” Salmon continued. “I remember Battleship, where you sink the other guy’s battleship. Of course I was right in there, trying to sink his battleship. But Hughes was too polite to try to sink mine, and he’d look so sad every time he sunk one of my ships.”

With a moment’s reflection she thought of another thing. “After about ten years of Christmas visits, it snowed one time and on his way to our house Hughes spun around in his Jaguar. It was on the Shawnigan - Mill Bay Road, right in the the village of Cobble Hill. Hughes was so upset that after that he never came for Christmas again.”

-Drawing given to the Shawnigan Lake Museum in 2007 by Pat Salmon. “It is of Fern making Christmas dinner,” she said. “It is too bad that Ed never made a painting of it.” -Drawing of the tip of snowy pine tree by Hughes while a War Artist at Camp Petawawa in 1941 (see pg 5)

The Shop Around the Corner

Suelle Stewart, Board Member Shawnigan Lake Historical Society

If you are looking for unique gifts this holiday season look no further than the gift shop at the Shawnigan Lake Museum. The museum’s gift shop, open since 2005, features approximately 300 items sourced from around the Cowichan Valley and British Columbia.

For the art lover, we have prints and reproductions by local artists including E.J. Hughes and Justin Nakatsuka, and three original pieces by Judy McNish Cadorette. Our collection reflects the history and beauty of our province. We feature other works of art crafted by local artisans.

Mindful of our historical roots, we have books by local authors for adults and children. You can delve into the rail history on the island or learn more about island communities. For the kids, you can find stories and colouring books telling our rich, First Nations history. Our selection is in keeping with our mission to educate.

You will find more than just art and books. We have a variety of clothing for kids and adults, educational toys, puzzles, jewelry, calendars and planners, and note cards, just to name a few. We also feature a variety of items created by First Nations artisans.

The Shawnigan Lake Museum invites you to visit in-person; call or check our website shawniganlakemuseum.com for our hours of operation. You can order from our online shop and arrange for a curbside pickup. All proceeds go to support the museum’s continued mission to connect us with our past, present, and future.

Let’s talk about real vaccine oppression...

Jared Qwustenuxun Williams, Elder’s Chef and Writer

By the time the original settlers of British Columbia arrived in Victoria, they had access to early vaccine technology. They themselves, would have probably been “varioloated”, a primitive form of vaccination, against smallpox. But when one man on a boat from San Francisco accidentally brought smallpox to Victoria in 1862, no one thought to share the technology with the first nations.

There were a few waves of smallpox that ran through the first nations communities of Vancouver Island and the mainland. Most of which took place after the entire US Army was varioloated, in 1775.

But what I want to highlight is this...in those waves of smallpox, 90% of hwulmuw people died. That’s nine out of every ten people, dead within a generation, 1820-1868. Smallpox isn’t a quiet disease - it spreads quickly with an RO of 4, and people get covered in incredibly painful sores. Hwunitum history is full of stories where settlers knew about the disease, some even praised it as God’s hand clearing the land for them. It’s all quite brutal really.

But there is one more story that I hear from knowledge keepers all over the coast. At the start of the 1862 epidemic a ship full of first nations people that were sick with smallpox was brought up the coast. They would deliver a random sick first nations person to many different villages on their way up the coast. Many tribes have stories of sick first nations people, who spoke strange languages, being dropped off by white men in their boats. I’ve heard these stories from many different tribes, and it explains better how the disease spread throughout the province so much quicker in 1862.

So, maybe, when you look at smallpox and consider that people were rubbing scabs from smallpox patients into their own wounds to prevent a disease, you might think that a jab is a bit easier. Even if you don’t, at least you’ll realize what hwulmuw people mean when they say British Columbia is on stolen lands and that we faced direct genocide.

In my eyes, the denial of a vaccine that could save millions of lives, is oppression. Whereas, giving one out freely is not.

“One or two Indians die nearly every day; but what is an Indian’s life worth? Not so much as a pet dog’s, to judge from the cruel apathy and stolid indifference with which they were allowed to rot under the very eyes—not to mention the olfactories—of those whose sacred duty it was to have comforted them in their hour of misery and wretchedness. This indifference did not escape the observation of the public and will be long remembered. The northerners, as tribes, are now nearly exterminated.” - “The Small Pox,” Colonist, 7 July 1862, p. 3.

HELP ... Together Let’s Slow Traffic at St. John’s Academy School

It isn’t uncommon for those travelling around the lake to speed making it unsafe for pedestrians, cyclists and students crossing the road.

The students at St. John’s Academy are asking for your help to slow down the traffic in front of their school? They have noticed that cars are speeding through the 30 km/h zone at unsafe speeds. The grades 4 and 5 are doing a project that involves contacting the RCMP and local government for advice on how this problem can be solved.

How can you help?

- 1. Share the link to this petition with your friends. Go to www.change.org. In the menu select search. The name of the petition is Help St. John’s Academy.
- 2. Sign the petition. By signing the petition you are helping motivate the students to work on initiatives to slow down traffic. This will help with student safety as they cross the road in front of the school.

Malahat Legion

We would like to thank everyone who helped with our November Poppy Drive. From the afternoon of poppy envelope stuffing, to helping distribute the poppies and to all the businesses and schools in the Lower Cowichan Valley for your support. We would also thank everyone who attended the ceremony at the Cobble Hill Cenotaph. All monies raised from donations will provide assistance for Veterans and their families.

We had our Veterans takeout dinner on Thursday November 25th. This was prepared by the Cobble Hill Farmers Institute for our Veterans. Special thanks to everyone for their help.

Due to Covid-19, and now the floods, the CMS Food Bank will need to make up more Christmas hampers this year. You can help by bringing non-perishable items to the Legion on Saturdays during our bottle drive until December 18th. They will not be able to give out toys again this year, so gift cards or cash donations will enable the families to buy their own. They can be placed in our drop box.

We are also raising money to replace items that were stolen during the break-in on Remembrance Day. Please check our website for the pictures of the two men and if you recognize them, please contact the RCMP.

Our meat draws continue on Saturday afternoons from 3:00 – 5:00 pm. December 11th is our Ham & Turkey draw. If there is still a limit on meat, Thrifty gift cards will be given out. YSAG will be hosting their Christmas bake sale from 2 to 4 pm. Everyone is welcome to attend. Covid Rules still apply.

Upcoming events:

- ★ December 15th – last day of crib – restarts January 5th at 1:00 pm
- ★ December 18th – last Meat draw until the New Year
- ★ Legion will be closed December 24, 25th, 31st and January 1st.
- ★ January 7th – Legion Re-opens
- ★ January 8th – First Meat Draw of the New Year.

Y.S.A.G. Quilters have very busy making 23 quilts for Quilts of Valour and presented them to Cowichan Valley Veterans. On November 15th, Lynn Carrol and members of YSAG presented Virginia Bauder with her Quilt.

YSAGS quilting group have presented more lap quilts to Veterans Broadmead Care Lodge. They are now working on local community charity quilts to donate.

YSAGS Folk Art group has started creating works of art. If anyone want to view photos of activities they can go to our blog: <http://blog.ysag.ca>. On December 11th we will be holding our Christmas bake sale from 2 to 4:00 pm.

Book Review

Marcy Green
Shawnigan Focus

The Apollo Murders by Chris Hadfield

Published by Random House Canada. Copyright 2021 by Chris Hadfield, Inc.

Is there anything Chris Hadfield can't do, and do superbly?

Renowned as a fighter test pilot, a Canadian astronaut and the Commander of the International Space Station, he is extremely well-qualified to write a book on space.
And who will ever forget his touching music video beamed from the ISS, the iconic "Space Oddity"? David Bowie would have been proud.

What is so interesting is that Hadfield has become a very good mystery writer, as well. This novel, set during the Cold War between the U.S. and Russia, is about the fictitious Apollo 18, sent to the moon, racing to intercept the Russian cosmonauts.

The characters are appealing, whether heroic or traitorous, and the story is a true thriller, full of bravery and espionage. The space details, are, of course, authentic,
although one could argue that they are described in a little too much detail at the beginning of the book.

However, after a few chapters, the reader settles into the descriptions, experiencing the G-force of take-off, floating in zero gravity and enjoying the details of eating and sleeping in space.

The tensions build and soon we are experiencing a fight in space, with an improbable rescue and an additional passenger.

The descriptions of the moon landing are beautiful, and we recognize that these are authentic first-person stories which make them even more powerful.

There is romance, peacebrokering and everything
an international adventure could offer. There is even a heart-thumping, crazy fight during the Apollo landing with the Good Guys managing to win.

This would make a wonderful Christmas book for anyone on your list. In fact, one copy is going to my husband and one to my son.
And, yes, I was careful not to break the spine or eat anything while reading it.

Recommended for the mystery readers and science buffs on your list.

Rating: 4.8/5 stars

Some other book recommendations for holiday giving, bearing in mind the Covid epidemic and a devastating flood from which the province is still recovering.
Hence, I am looking mainly at escapist reading to soothe the stressed-out mind.

★ Apples Never Fall by Liane Moriarty- Another mesmerizing family drama from this best-selling author that is full of recognizable characters, with foibles
and traits that echo in most families. This is also a tense thriller.
Recommended for Book Club members.

★ The World According to Dogs-An Owner's Manual by Adrian
Raeside. Vancouver
Island's favourite cartoonist scores a hit with this light-hearted and amusing book.

Recommended for dog
lovers of all ages.

And I'd like to recommend as gifts these final two, both of which have been reviewed in this column before:

★ Taste, My Life Through Food by Stanley Tucci.
Recommended for lovers of food, travel, wine and all things Stanley.

★ The E. J. Hughes Book of Boats by Robert Amos - a stunning
book featuring the boat paintings of Shawnigan Lake's best-known artist.
Recommended for just about anyone. Available in the Shawnigan Lake Museum, along with other interesting local books.

On behalf of the Area B
Parks Commission

Sometimes dreams can become reality. My dream is to see a vast multi-use trail system in the Shawnigan Lake area. Slowly chipping away, we have added trails and new parks to our beautiful community. Dream with me. See a trail from Mt.
Baldy Park to Old Mill Park and from there connecting to Shawnigan Wharf Park which leads onto the new trail to Renfrew Rd. and Mason's Beach Park.

But don't stop there... Can you see a trail to the west out to Shawnigan Beach Estates, even connecting to Cowichan Valley Trail and the Kinsol Trestle? Now look to the east and visualize a trail heading to Mill Bay.

Now head North. A trail that goes all the way to Cobble Hill Mt. Rec. Area.
Wow!

What's so great about all these trails? A disability-friendly trail network provides us with safe areas for jogging; a place to ride our bikes; power walking; taking children for a walk in strollers, all in a peaceful, safe environment. Focusing our attention on the beauty that surrounds us instead of fearing for our safety on narrow roadways. Imagine our trails as a mecca for cyclists touring the island, stopping in for food and refreshments along the way. Economic benefits certainly come with eco-tourism.

As I mentioned, we are slowly building a trail system. The most exciting and integral part of making it work is the Rail Trail portion from Wharf Park to Old Mill. This is a great way to create momentum for a regional trail system! Support this critical initiative. Make our community even better for our future generations to enjoy. Let's join together and show support for this new portion of the area trail system. Yes, dreams can come true!
